Colleagues,

Today, we are ending 8 weeks of emergency remote teaching and learning, and the culmination of the Spring 2020 semester. Because of your determination, commitment, and spirit, we were able to support the academic journey of thousands of students. This is a remarkable success. During this unprecedented human crisis for many of our students, you were a significant source of hope and support. I join our students in expressing sincere appreciation and thanks to all of you.

As the world continues to fight against this pathogen in search of a vaccine and antiviral medications, we will continue on with our mission of teaching and learning. We have a respite of two weeks before the start of summer sessions - let us take this time to unwind and recharge.

I hope that you and your family, both here and around the world, are doing well. Please continue to take good care of yourself and be safe.

Sanjay.
