Join the discussion as Montgomery College's Office of Equity and Inclusion, in partnership with Montgomery County's Office of the County Executive and The Universities at Shady Grove, examines what critical race theory (CRT) is—and what it isn't.

This forum will share innovative ways CRT is being integrated into different disciplines as well as the application of services and supports; provide a safe environment for civil dialogue; foster stronger college, community, and institutional relationships; and develop a toolkit for action.

Montgomery College employees who wish to earn professional development credit by attending this event should register through MC Learns.
