6. REPORTS

A. President's Report

Dr. Pollard provided brief remarks on her report, which focused on the College’s technology. She noted that this topic was selected based on the Board’s fall retreat. Dr. Pollard provided an overview of the College’s progress and opportunities in different areas and highlighted the Office of Information Technology’s two initiatives, a unit-wide climate and situational self-assessment and completion of the unit’s reorganization. Dr. Pollard noted that the College is looking at innovation and the network infrastructure. In exploring the delivery of massive open online courses, MOOCs, the College is looking to see what is happening in other states and how it might align with them. Dr. Pollard noted that the College must be ready for mobile technology and determine how it can use various applications, as they are the new chalkboards of the classroom. The College is examining virtual technology, how technology affects physical space, and access points for connecting to technology in the College’s total environment. Dr. Pollard noted that the College must look at technology as an asset as well as a liability. The College must determine how it will prepare for change as technology is driving change today.

Trustees’ comments focused on the rapid change of technology and the College’s ability to respond quickly and adapt; the evaluation of a meaningful and effective way about how to react to change; concern about the expected level of expertise for students and the College’s ability to meet it; the costs involved in advancing technology; the College’s need to be strategic and mindful about what students are here to do; the need to look strategically at the institution; the College’s willingness to articulate the expectation of faculty; structural preparation; and the need to use technology that serves the students best and not worry about competition. One trustee noted that the key is to use good judgment and know the costs.

Dr. Pollard noted that the institution must know and understand the very nature of knowledge and how one defines community in a global world.

B. CHAIR’S REPORT

Trustee Kaufman commented on Trustee Information Day held on the Rockville Campus on March 7, and provided highlights on the visit to the Office of Student Life, the Financial Aid Office, a science classroom that was experimenting with the new types of furniture and different arrangements, and a science classroom that included the use of iPads for instruction.
