Adjective clauses are dependent clauses that give information about nouns. They allow you to combine two sentences into one by using relative pronouns (who, whom, whose, where, when, which, that, and why) as connectors.

WHO (used for people as subjects)

My friend missed the lecture. + She borrowed Sam's notes to review.

 $\rightarrow$  My friend who missed the lecture borrowed Sam's notes to review.

WHOM (used for people as objects)

The candidate won by a landslide. + Many people admire him.

 $\rightarrow$  The candidate whom many people admire won by a landslide.

WHOSE (used to indicate possession)

I admire Professor Brooks. + His books were stolen.

 $\rightarrow$  I admire Professor Brooks, whose books were stolen.

THAT (use for people, place, and things -- introduces information necessary to explain a noun)

I met a man on the bus today. + He works at the World Bank.

 $\rightarrow$  The man that I met on the bus today works at the World Bank.

WHICH (used for places, things -- introduces extra information about an already specific noun)

My new car needs very little gas. + It was a gift from my son.

 $\rightarrow$  My new car, which was a gift from my son, needs very little gas.

NOTE: When an adjective clause provides extra information, it is set off by commas.

WHEN and WHERE (used to replace in which, on which, etc. not which)

July 25 was sad for me. + I left home on that day.

 $\rightarrow$  July 25, when I left home, was sad for me.

I have always wanted to visit the big house. + Julio lives in that house.

 $\rightarrow$  I have always wanted to visit the big house where Julio lives.

WHY (usually introduces a noun clause)

My cousin ran away. + I don't know why.

 $\rightarrow$  I don't know why my cousin ran away.

Combine the following sentences into one using an adj	jective clause.
1. Students do well on tests if they are prepared beforehand	nd. Some students are anxious.
2. A research paper on environmental problems received	an award. I wrote the paper.
3. My driveway is in front of my house. I park four cars	there.
4. The Industrial Revolution changed the way people mal	ke things. It began in England.
5. Recently, a large airplane had a serious accident. It was	as carrying too many passengers.
6. British Petroleum received criticism because of the oil	spill in the Gulf. It is known as BP
7. The dress was long, black, and beautiful. Mary wore in	t.
8. On my vacation, I met a boy. My father disliked him.
9. Jacob is a student in my biology class. His father is the meets twice a week.	ambassador from Kenya. The class
Complete the following sentences with an adjective cla  1. I'll never forget the time when
2. I gave up my seat on the bus to a woman whose
3. The person whom
4. Everyone criticized my opinion, which
5. Often, people who	end up being successful.
6. Many people find Maryland, where	, exciting.