

The Writing, Reading, and Language Center-Rockville's Virtual Writing Studio is Now Open!

The WRLC Rockville and the Creative Writing Club invite you to the Virtual Studio! We meet every Friday from 11 AM - 1 PM to write, workshop our writing, discuss literature, and play writing games. Everyone is welcome -- poets, songwriters, film writers, novelists, or people just interested in listening or talking about writing.

Meeting ID: 963 9150 5281

Passcode: 639683

We have writing groups!

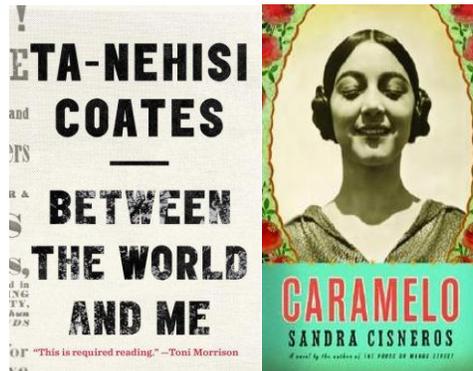

Image Source: Wikipedia

Are you an African-American male interested in an engaging literary workshop?

Led by Professor Charles Washington, students in this writing workshop will engage in expressive writing focused on their identities. Students will have the opportunity to choose their own genre of writing to capture their thoughts, ideas, reflections on current events and much more!

Meeting time: Saturdays from 1-2pm on Zoom.

Are you a Latinx student interested in meeting with other students to advance your writing skills?

Led by Professor Emma Muñoz, students will have the opportunity to form a writing group to explore the nuances and complexities of successful writing as well as build relationships between peers. Students will be encouraged to make connections between writing and their identities. Readings and discussions will be in English/Spanish, depending on the composition of the group.

Meeting time: Thursdays from 12:00-1:00 pm on Zoom.

Please contact Lucinda.Grinnell@montgomerycollege to register or if you have any questions.

Registered students will receive a special gift!