1. What is your role at Montgomery College?

I've worked at the college for over eleven years and I work in the Office of E-Learning, Innovation, and Teaching Excellence as the Web and Multimedia Specialist.

2. How long have you been in your current profession?

I started working as a web designer during my freshman year at college in 2001, so I have worked in my profession for over 18 years.

3. How do you define success?

I would define success as being happy with your work and being able to achieve the goals that you set out to do.

4. What hobby would you get into if time and money were not an issue?

So one of my favorite hobbies, beside tennis, is actually traveling. So if money wasn't an issue I would love to travel around the world for like six months or a year.

5. What are you currently passionate about?

One of the things that I am most passionate about is writing. I do a lot of writing like poetry and short stories, so that's something that I do a lot and also reading.

6. What is one goal you hope to achieve this year?

One of the goals that I have for the year is actually to finish editing all of my short stories and then publish all my short stories into like a book and give copies to my friends and family.

7. What is your favorite quote?

One of my favorite quotes is actually something that I wrote by myself a long time ago and the quote is: "Don't look back to yesterday. Learn from your mistakes." I wrote this quote because sometimes in life you make mistakes but always learn from it and then move on and don't look back.

8. What do you want to be remembered for?

I would love to be remembered for my writing. So hopefully once my short stories get published, people will get a chance to read it, they will like what they're reading and remember me for my writing.
