

Title of Lesson

Environmental Issues in the Modern World

Course

The World in the 20th Century 20125—HIST 114-011

Professor: Terence L. Johnson

Student Outcomes

1. Students will be able to discuss the basic problems associated with pollution in the emerging world.
2. Students will identify, discuss, and describe Environmental Racism.
3. Students will learn about the legacy of Western Industrialization and its impact on historically oppressed populations.

Lessons

One class period will be devoted to this assignment. Students are expected to prepare the required readings before the first class session. The instructor will lecture about the Industrial Revolution. Students will have opportunities for class discussion. After the class discussion, several short videos about India will be shown. Students will then have time for an additional class discussion on the topics covered in the videos. In the next class meeting, a multiple choice quiz will be given over the reading assignments. After the final class discussion, the students will be given a take home writing assignment.
