Montgomery College provides a wide variety of long- and short-term programs designed to assist individuals looking for a new career. Programs are designed for those entering the workforce for the first time, re-entering the workforce, changing career fields, receiving industry certifications, strengthening basic skills, or investing in ongoing professional development. College programs include traditional one- and two-year certificate and degree programs, as well as many short-term noncredit career programs.

This Career Resource Guide provides an overview of short-term career programs provided through the College’s noncredit program areas of Workforce Development & Continuing Education. Generally, the programs require less than one year, and in many cases, are designed to be started and finished within a few months.

For many individuals, these programs may serve as career starters. The programs are designed around entry-level skill requirements, certifications, or employer-driven competencies, which can serve as a starting point for career paths within the selected field of study.

Our most successful students are those who spend time reviewing career fields, thinking about personal interests, understanding work conditions and educational requirements, and seeing how career-starting programs can lead to an ongoing continuum of learning and advancement within the chosen fields.

The online resource Career Coach, described on the next page, has been very well received by community members as a helpful resource for considering career fields. Career Coach is designed for public access and integrates several labor markets, tools, and related College programs.

We encourage students, community members, and employers to explore the array of programs and services that are available through Montgomery College. For further information, please call Montgomery College at 240-567-5188 or visit montgomerycollege.edu/wdce.

The Office of Community Engagement takes Montgomery College beyond the campus and into the community through community engagement centers, partnerships with nonprofits, community events, and grassroots outreach.

As the face of Montgomery College in the community, our primary job is to empower students and county residents by connecting those in underserved and under-represented communities with the College. We’re ready to help anyone find the next step toward success and achieve their potential. Our staff speak many languages, and we offer translation and interpretation services.

We operate three community engagement centers. Some classes are offered at the centers, and center staff can direct you to information about other classes and programs at the College. https://www.montgomerycollege.edu/ community-engagement
