High-quality noncredit courses are available in numerous program areas including information technology, small business and management, technical training, certification and licensure preparation, financial planning, real estate, early childhood education, health sciences, professional development, writing, English as a Second Language, human resources, supervision, and more. Special programs are available for older adults, adults with developmental disabilities, and Spanish speakers. Course offerings change continuously to reflect the ever-changing needs of the businesses and communities we serve. As you peruse the programs and services in this publication, we're sure you'll find a wide variety of offerings suited to you.

In addition to classes for individuals, we contract with many businesses and government agencies to provide customized training for their employees. These classes are held at places of employment or can be offered at WDCE sites throughout the county.

Learn about visual storytelling, the layout and design of children's books, and the process of conceptualizing a picture book from start to finish. Choose a story to work with, create a storyboard, and work on a book dummy. We will look at examples, discuss composition, drawing and painting methods, and how to pitch to publishers or self-publish. Note: though you will be drawing, this is not a how-to-draw class. The focus is on narrative visual storytelling in the picture book format. Open to students of all levels. TWA

Math is used every day! Did you know that minor home improvement projects are loaded with measuring lengths, widths, and how much lumber you will need to complete your project? Grocery shopping is a weekly task that incorporates math; calculating prices while you shop, making sure you have the correct amount of money, and using coupons. Did you know that food items are not taxable? Baking requires math skills; when you bake a pie, cake or cupcakes, you will be using math by measuring ingredients correctly. In this class you will learn the value of time, creating your own to-do-lists and assigning tasks based on how long you think they will take. Math is everywhere!

Still Lifes; Are they Really the Lowest on the Painting Genre Scale? NEW!

Who doesn't love to look at paintings of lush flowers or fruit? Think 17th-century Dutch still lifes. Still-life paintings usually represent ordinary things-vases, flowers, fruit, and treasured objects. No longer are still lifes considered low on the appreciation scale; they are now revered as some of the most charming and best-loved paintings and can contain intriguing meanings. In this course, we will look at the natural world that inspired artists. Who can look at a Dutch still life painting and not be amazed at the varieties of flora and fauna contained therein? But did you know that Pompeian mosaics display some of the earliest still lifes? A recently excavated mosaic purportedly showed a pizza! The range of works of art in this genre is endless; it is ours to explore. Consider Salvador Dali's Persistence of Memory. Or Picasso's cubist works, such as Still-Life with Chair Caning. TWA

American Top Ten: The Legacy of Exclusion NEW!

From the eloquence of the Declaration of Independence to the silent exclusions buried in state constitutions, American history has been shaped as much by its omissions as its ideals. American Top Ten: The Legacy of Exclusion is a four-session journey into the foundational texts, laws, decisions, and doctrines that have defined, constrained, and excluded whole classes of people—often in the name of order, liberty, or law. Rather than a celebration of American exceptionalism, this series examines the legal architectures of inequality: the positive laws that made slavery enforceable, that erased women's legal identities, that removed Indigenous nations from ancestral lands, and that continue to disenfranchise voters and minoritize bodies. We trace how courts, presidents, and lawmakers repeatedly drew hard lines—between white and Black, citizen and alien, male and female, landholder and displaced. Each session invites close reading and critical reflection on both the letter and the spirit of the law. Together, we'll confront the legacy of these exclusions and ask: What does civic memory look like when we center the laws that limited freedom, rather than just those that proclaimed it? TWA

Now We're Cooking: Short Stories About Food NEW!

Pleasure, hunger, sustenance, survival, hospitality, cultural identity-- food is a thematic marker of all of these issues, and more! Join this class for a literary feast built around classic and modern stories that delve deep into food and the way it marks our lives and interactions. In stories of feasts, do we find hospitality as radical generosity or as a marker of who we invite in and who we leave out of our circles? How do traditions around food mark our cultural identities? Examine how hunger indicates both physical and spiritual needs, both aspirational longing for more and the poverty of malnourishment; and explore ways in which food, which is always central to our lives, can also be thematically central to storytelling. The Bronte Sisters: A Survey of Their Life and Writings NEW!

Explore the life and writing of the Bronte sisters, Charlotte, Emily, and Anne. We will begin our study by focusing on Yorkshire, England in the 1800's, considering local legends that gave rise to their novels, and the notorious hardships of life in their hometown of Haworth. We will discuss the conventions of Gothic fiction and consider how its themes were suited to life as the Brontes knew it. Discussing the novels Jane Eyre, The Tenant of Wildfell Hall, and Wuthering Heights, we will examine how the Brontes utilized and adapted Gothic conventions in their storytelling. In considering the sisters' legacy, we will also read Jean Rhys's novel The Wide Sargasso Sea (written in the 1960's as a prequel to Jane Eyre). TWA

Co-Listed Classes

Classes marked with this code (CoL) are co-listed. They are offered so that students may register either for credit or continuing education (noncredit) status. Co-listing gives students an option to choose the best path for their educational needs. Each section includes both credit and noncredit students. For students seeking credit classes, please consult the credit course schedule. The expectations for attendance, participation, and effort are the same for all students. Any non-credit student who enrolls in a co-listed class must be prepared to document that they meet the applicable credit class assessment/prerequisite requirements upon request and in specific classes, the student will be required to be assessed prior to enrollment. Instructors will announce policies concerning class activities. If you have questions about readiness/assessments, please contact the listing program/department.

If you have registered as a noncredit student in a co-listed course and you wish to change from noncredit to credit status, you will have one day after the class has begun to do so. After that, you are committed to your path as a noncredit student for the remainder of the course. If the course has a required assessment level to be a credit student, you must first complete the assessment testing and meet the appropriate assessment level before you can change to credit status. Dates for co-listed classes may reflect the actual credit term dates. Please check the day on your calendar for the actual start date of your class.
